How can you not be blown away by these numbers, this is a company with a market cap of less than 3 million that has put up a quarter with a profit of almost the entire market cap. To focus on 100k of debt incurred at the beginning of the quarter is shortsighted and stupid. These are spectacular numbers for a penny stock. I want to be the first to congratulate management for a spectacular job!!!

Mike don't like to contradict anyone but perhaps you could explain to me how Lakens options are stopping the stock from moving up. He hasn't gotten them, he is the ultimate insider, couldn't sell a share without disclosing. I believe he is probably a buyer at these levels. Don't believe that has anything to do with the quiet in the stock, people just waiting on developments, but that's just one mans opinion.

Well said Pickle, Glenn has been a friend of mine for many years, we traded together on the floor of the CME and I've been with him in good times and bad. I know he feels passionately about this company and its shareholders. That was his reason for taking the options and not the stock that was offered to him, 25 million shares, he wanted to get paid if everyone else did. He's told me that he has spoken to a number of shareholders that have contacted him through the info on the company website and told me to put out there he remains available to speak to shareholders who take the time to reach out, thanks.

I spoke to Glenn and he is definitely looking around for financing and told me to deliver this message that any long holder of CMGO who is interested in providing financing for the company should get in touch with MW and provide him with a number and Glenn will contact you.

Glenn asked me to impart a few things on his behalf, the audit is being worked on. There was a problem with the auditor not the company and that is the delay. It will be done next week. The company is very tight cash and Glenn has made 2 significant loans to the company to fund necessary fundings. He is committed to getting the company back on its feet, and is working full time at no compensation to make this happen. He stated that he was working on a number of initiatives that could be favorable to the company and hoped to be able to share them soon. He also said he understood that the silence was deafening and asked for your indulgence for a short time longer.

My own feeling is that Monday could very well be the last day that we see one of our beloved posters posting here anymore!!!! It is interesting that the only executive this company has ever had who has gone into his own pocket to support this business is continually ridiculed and attacked by those who don't own a share of stock. Never thought Laken was a knight in shinning armor, seems to me he's done as well as he could dealt the shit hand he was. But I will say sticking around and trying to fix it has gotten my attention. Been in penny land a long time rarely plays that way! So we will se how it finishes I'm betting on Laken over Joe and I Bet better than I trade!!

I have no idea how Laken was ever in business with Darren Ofsink, other than Ofsink represented CMG. While Ofsink has been accused of wrong doing he has been convicted of nothing. Last I checked in this country we are presumed innocent until convicted of something. When people show up out of the blue making accusations I always wonder what their motivations are, but that's just me!!!!

I can assure you from the only insider that really counts who is Laken that he isn't selling a share. I know this because I speak to him regularly. He believes ultimately this stock trades way higher but patience will necessary. The lawsuit is very much in play, waiting for a ruling from the judge with a go ahead there the stock is seriously undervalued. XA holding its own covering expenses and the 57/58 % of GG, these prices make little sense, only time will tell but value looks on our side!

It is true that nobody works for free nor should any of us expect them too. But if there is a huge settlement or verdict my money says this guy is going to share with the shareholders who have hung in there with him. And with the price of this stock now if that happens I figure there is going to be a bunch of money to go around IMO. You put your money up u take your chances I like the odds.

Believe me Glenn has stepped up he and his wife have worked this magical lawsuit for 2 years and 1000s of hours, that how it works with these gigantic lawsuits. David Boise's firm didn't take this lawsuit on contingency because he didn't think it has serious merit. If it proves out the current capitalization will be a joke, this one is a buy and hold at these levels and see what happens, risk reward looks extremely favorable here in one mans opinion.

Not a thing has changed this is a lawsuit play right now. If the lawsuit is successful there is nothing but upside, lawsuits don't move quickly they take time and effort and this suit is getting all of that. So if you don't have the patience to see it through might as well take your loss and move on, although it seems to me if you waited this long you might as well hang on and see how it plays out, risk reward clearly in your favor, imho!!!!
